Woman Is Hurt By Porch Collapse At Baptising

INFANT ESCAPES WITHOUT INJURIES IN MOTHER'S ARMS

Religious Ceremonial Attracts Crowd of 5,000 People

MORE THAN 80 ARE BAPTIZED

Pressure Too Strong On Porch of House Overlooking Creek

Mrs. J. Brown, of Priceville was severely injured, but her three months old baby, in her arms at the time escaped unhurt, when a porch on which a number of people were witnessing a baptising in Flint creek Sunday afternoon, collapsed.

The others who went down in the crumbling of the porch all escaped without injury, except possibly bruises, so far as could be ascertained here today.

Mrs. Brown was given medical attention by Dr. F. L. Chenault, prominent local physician, who was attending the religious ceremony. He stated today her back apparently was severely hurt and she suffered bruises about the neck and shoulders. She was removed to her home following the accident.

The baptising which was the aftermath of a union revival service held by the Baptist churches at Friendship, New Center and Rock Creek, was attended by a crowd estimated at nearly 5,000 people. The ceremony occurred near the Flint Creek bridge on the Somerville road, east of here. It was stated here today that 74 white persons and eight negroes were baptised during the ceremony.

So crowded was the area that many gathered on the front porch of a dwelling overlooking the scene. One report here today was that the dwelling was being used as a dressing room for those baptised, but this report lacked confirmation.

The pressure on the porch finally became too great, and it collapsed, carrying a number of people to earth. That more were not hurt was regarded as very unusual and the fact that the Brown infant, in the mother's arms, was not injured was declared by some who witnessed the accident as most singular.

The revival service in that section of the county attracted wide interest and obtained most successful results for the work of the Lord, it was declared here today. The baptismal ceremony Sunday was one of the greatest ever held in that section and it was stated the work of the churches in the eastern part of Morgan county has been far advanced by the efforts of the preacher and the workers in the union meeting.

A registration headquarters has been opened in the Princess theater building and babies may be registered at any time between the hours of ten in the morning and eight o'clock at night. #### TWO THOUSAND AT SACRED HARP SING

2-day Meeting Here Is Concluded At Courthouse

A crowd estimated at two thousand persons attended the Sunday program of the Sacred Harp singing in the Morgan County courthouse. The sing began Saturday with a fairly large attendance, but by noon Sunday many hundreds of additional visitors had arrived.

Members of the committee in charge of the arrangements declared the meeting, which concluded Sunday, was probably the most successful ever held here and they were enthusiastic over prospects for increasing the interest and attendance locally.

Miss Boughbo, of Arab, 14-year old girl, led several of the songs, her numbers being especially inspirational to the throng of devout singers. The numbers led by Mr. Brown, of Birmingham, also, were much enjoyed.

Another feature of the fair that promises to arouse much interest among the younger generation is the contest for the titles of Miss Albany, Miss Decatur and Miss North Alabama Fair. A popularity election will be held by the Junior chamber to decide the young ladies upon whom the various titles and prizes will be conferred. Nominations of various candidates have already been received from many sources and a warm race is promised.

A beautiful coronation ceremony will be staged on the last night of the fair when Miss North Alabama Fair and her two ladies-in-waiting, Miss Albany and Miss Decatur will be crowned at a miniature reproduction of the Court of St. James. Handsome diamond rings and loving cups will be awarded these ladies. Headquarters for this event is also in the Princess building.

TYPHOID FEVER IS BEING WIPED OUT BY INOCULATIONS

Three Hundred Given Treatment In Day By Dr. McRee

GOES TODAY TO MASONS RIDGE

Ryan's Cross Roads Is Rarely Visited By The Disease Now

Inoculation has practically ended typhoid fever in the Ryans Cross Roads section of Morgan county, according to Dr. H. C. McRee, Morgan county health officer, who returned today after having given about 300 inoculations Monday to school children and adults in Ryans Cross Roads, and intervening areas.

Tuesday afternoon Dr. McRee planned to go to Masons Ridge where he expects to give a number of additional inoculations to school children and adults.

Most of the inoculations now being completed are "renewals." That is, they are the second and third inoculations given to the adults and some of the older children, the earlier periods of immunity having expired.

"These people tell me out there that they hardly ever hear of a case of typhoid fever now," Dr. McRee declared. "Before inoculation was started, they said a number of cases of typhoid fever developed in that part of the county every summer. Naturally it is very pleasing to the health workers to learn that the preventative plans of the department really are getting results and that typhoid is virtually eliminated."

Dr. McRee urged the residents of all sections of the county to be inoculated, in the belief that if inoculations become general that typhoid will be eliminated entirely in Morgan county.

Bee Line Roadway In Good Condition

The highway between these cities and Athens has recently been scraped and gravel added to the surface. The highway has been surveyed with the plan toward straightening dangerous curves and takes away much of the chance of accident.

"May God Help And Bless You," Words of Henry Bachelor

BROTHER-IN-LAW IS WITH STATE

Wife of Defendant Is Not at His Side As Attorneys Battle

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 7.

(AP)—A crowd so vast that it appeared at times to be out of control of officers gathered here today at the opening of the trial of Clyde Reese Bachelor, charged with murder, in connection with the death of Judge Lamar Smith, his father-in-law.

Scores of officers under Sheriff John Golden and W. K. McAdams, chief state law enforcement official, were stationed inside and outside the courtroom.

Bachelor, flanked on all sides by officers, arrived from Montgomery jail a few minutes before court opened.

The defense lost the first round of its fight, Judge Smoot denying a motion for postponement.

Bachelor was handcuffed when he was brought into court, but the manacles were removed when he took his seat. He was a pathetic figure, pale and extremely nervous. Henry Bachelor, the father embraced his son tenderly, tears streaming from the parent's eyes. Ray Rushton, of defense counsel, made an earnest plea for postponement for a month or so in order that counsel might have a better opportunity to prepare the case for the defense.

Judge Smoot immediately overruled the motion.

Bachelor faced trial with the blessing of his father.

"May God help you and bless you and may you be a changed man," the parent said to the son. The father and mother visited the son in jail this week. The meeting was described as one of almost complete silence. Parents and son spent the time weeping.

The crowd was so dense in corridors of the courthouse that newspaper men were provided escorts of officers to pursue their work. Six deputies were required.

MECHANIC SLAIN IN AN ARGUMENT

Death Is Instant To Bessemer Boy Soon After a Dance

BIRMINGHAM, Sept. 7.—(AP)

Ernest True, 23, mechanic for the Brownell Motor Co., Bessemer, was shot to death shortly after midnight last night and C. J. Kellum, 23, of Dolomite is held in the county jail at Bessemer in connection with the killing. The quarrel during which True was shot is said to have started at a dance at West Lake. The shooting occurred near the general hospital where a group of young men are said to have taken a girl on their return from the dance.

True is reported to have been accompanied by four boys Bob Coleman, Clyde Kirkman, Bill Jeffries, and Clifford Bowden. The boys had stopped near the hospital when Kellum drove up and after a short argument shot True, it was reported to Bessemer police. True died almost instantly.

Kellum surrendered to the Bessemer police who upon learning of True's death, turned him over to county authorities.

The quarrel is said to have been originated at the dance where True is said to have resented Kellum's treatment of a girl the previous night. The argument continued, when Kellum drove alongside the group.

True had been working in Bessemer for some months. He lived in Tuscaloosa where his burial will take place.

The defense had summoned four witnesses; They are: Dr. O. S. Justice, the Bachelor family physician, Jesse McKethron, Gus Hanlon and Sanford Collier. Dr. Justice is expected to bear out the plea of the defense that Bachelor is abnormal mentally. The other witnesses for the defense will testify concerning Bachelor's actions after he was discharged from the army in the world war.

Family Physician To Testify Regarding Bachelor's Mind

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 7.

(AP)—When the jury venire had been qualified in the trial of Clyde Reese Bachelor here today, Judge George F. Smoot ordered a recess until 1:15 p. m.

The actual drawing of the jury will begin at the afternoon session of the court. Fourteen men of the venire of 100 were disqualified. From the remaining 86 men a jury will be chosen. The defense has 32 strikes and the state 16. It is believed a jury will be selected without exhausting the qualified panel.

Bachelor, pale and nervous, when he was brought into court from Montgomery jail this morning, gained his composure as the trial proceeded. He is charged with plotting the assassination of his father-in-law, Judge Lamar Smith.

Judge Smoot ordered Sheriff Golden to admit to the courtroom hereafter only those persons who can find seats. The crowd was so dense at the opening session today that officers maintained order with utmost difficulty.

During the noon recess Bachelor and his alleged accomplice, Hays Leonard, negro, were locked up in the county jail near the courthouse. A heavy guard was about the prison.

The defense had summoned four witnesses; They are: Dr. O. S. Justice, the Bachelor family physician, Jesse McKethron, Gus Hanlon and Sanford Collier. Dr. Justice is expected to bear out the plea of the defense that Bachelor is abnormal mentally. The other witnesses for the defense will testify concerning Bachelor's actions after he was discharged from the army in the world war.

Can a Wife Forgive "Soul-Mates"?—

Mrs. Garland Answers

Bettina Hovey, Garland's Present Soul-Mate.

At last the saddened, harassed, but patiently loyal wife of Charles Garland is suing him for divorce.

She has filed suit for divorce at Cape Cod and Garland, recently released from a Pennsylvania prison, where his admiration for his newest affinity, Bettina Hovey, landed him, did not contest the divorce. Instead, he calmly went back to Bettina at their Pennsylvania "April Farm."

Like her husband, Mary Wrenn Garland comes from a wealthy family. Six years ago, when he scornfully rejected a $1,000,000 inheritance, declaring he had no right to it and ought to work for a living, she agreed with his views. A year after they were married, however, Garland did something still more "eccentric." He openly declared his love for Lillian Conrad, his mother's secretary, and Lillian went to live with him on the now renowned "April Farm" in North Carver, down on Cape Cod. Garland's mother, Marie Tudor Garland, the poetess, who is descended from the royal Tudors of ancient England, was inclined to share his radical views. Another of her proteges besides Lillian Conrad, a student at Amherst named Doris Benson, was the second convert to the "April Farm" idea. Later there came Albee Edgerton, a demure little Quakeress from Philadelphia, a blonde from New York who remained, mysteriously, "Just Anna," and an equally mysterious black-haired girl from the Mexican border, called Harriet. Garland was reconciled with his wife for a time, and lived with her at her home in Dedham, a suburb of Boston. A second child was born to them. Garland would not give up his ideas or his experimentations. He begged his wife to come to "April Farm" with the two children to live. This she agreed to do, but the eager, starry-eyed Bettina Hovey, of New York, fresh from college, was there. It was Bettina who claimed she was the mother of the Garland baby who died at the Garland colosseum at Allentown, Pa., last winter, and was buried without civil authority. To this transplanted "April Farm" Garland and Bettina had gone after they had left Massachusetts, and had paid a visit to a "co-operative colony" in Louisiana. The death of the baby, Barbetta, who was said to have smothered to death in a blanket, raised a question as to the parentage of the four-year-old boy, Mowgli, who was found in the camp. Miss Hovey said he was hers by another man than Garland. This brought the pair into court on charges of misconduct. Garland was sentenced to two months in the Allentown jail and was fined $500. "Enough!" cried Mary Wrenn Garland, or words to that effect. At last she admitted she had ample grounds for divorce.

DIET AND HOT TOWELS RELIEVE COLITIS

This Distressing Ailment May Be the Result of Some Other Trouble Which Needs the Careful Scrutiny of a Doctor.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I HAVE a letter from a reader in Ohio asking for an article on colitis. She wants to know what is the proper treatment for this ailment. Anatomists divide the intestinal tract into two parts. The upper part is known as the small intestine. The lower part is the large intestine, or, as it is usually called, the colon.

The colon is lined with a mucous membrane just as all of the passages of the body are lined. For instance, the bronchial tubes are lined with a mucous membrane. This membrane, no matter where it is found, is liable to infection and to catarrhal inflammation. When the lining of the bronchial tubes is involved in this way we call the disease bronchitis. When the lining of the large intestine is infected and inflamed we call the disease colitis.

Doctors classify diseases in a general way as acute or chronic. We have an acute bronchitis, such as follows a cold. We have chronic bronchitis, such as old people suffer from a good many times.

Likewise there may be an acute colitis, which is described as "dysentery." Then we have chronic colitis, particularly mucous or mucous-membranous colitis. Undoubtedly it is this particular form of colitis which my correspondent wishes to have described.

May I say in the beginning that mucous colitis is a very obstinate ailment? Even though it may not be serious so far as life is concerned, it is very difficult to treat. Unfortunately, there may be some underlying disturbance of a serious nature. A growth in the pelvic region may place pressure upon the colon or may involve the colon. This is why the wise doctor will make a thorough examination to be sure that the colitis is not secondary to something more important.

There are just enough uncomfortable symptoms associated with mucous colitis to keep its victim worried and unhappy. There is a feeling of discomfort in the abdomen and occasional attacks of colic. These symptoms set up a constant reminder of the disease. In consequence the victim has his mind on himself all the time.

These uncomfortable symptoms are made worse every time there is the slightest indiscretion in diet. Excitement of any sort is apt to bring on an acute attack of colitis. Colitis may not have diarrhea as a constant symptom. On the contrary there may be periods when the to clear the way for a staff man of the Associated Press to reach a telephone.

A trace of a smile crossed Bachelor's face as he nodded now and then to acquaintances who passed about him. He conferred frequently with his lawyers. He appeared to gain control of himself as the trial proceeded.

Hays Leonard, negro farmhand, who assassinated Judge Smith at the behest of Bachelor was brought into court with the principal and occupied a seat among the witnesses. Manacles were removed from the negro's arms when he was seated.

Bachelor's wife, formerly Elizabeth Smith, was not in court, although it was understood she had pledged her support in the effort to save her husband from the extreme penalty.

The only intimation of the case to be built by the defense that Bachelor is insane was given in the announcement that Dr. O. S. Justice, the Bachelor family physician of Centre, was under summons to appear as a witness. It is expected that Dr. Justice will testify concerning alleged abnormality of the defendant.

Jurors were qualified in groups of six. Two men were disqualified because of disbelief in capital punishment and another was asked to step aside when he expressed bias in favor of the defendant. Another venireman was excused because of illness of his wife.

George Benard Smith, son of Judge Smith, sat with state's counsel. He took no notice of Bachelor when he entered court. He is a witness for the state.

It was estimated that 450 persons had crowded into the courtroom which seats comfortably only half that number.

Borger, Tex., "Worst Town on Earth" Starts Move To Become Sober City

Wildest, Wooliest Town In the West Decides To Clean House; Gamblers See Gloomy Days Ahead; 500 Women Are Run Out of Town.

By International News Service

AMARILLO, Texas. — Borger, "Booger Town," the wildest, wooliest, wickedest city in the New Texas Panhandle oil fields, is cleaning up.

Tired of its reputation as "the worst town on earth," the six months old oil boom city is launching a drive to rid itself of the gamblers, bootleggers, hi-jackers, oil field women and other characters responsible for the weird publicity, and make a sober city of itself.

Texas Rangers Hutchinson and Potter, county sheriff's forces, the two-gun police force of the town and the better element of the Borger citizenry, now considerably in the majority, are aiding in the drive.

Since the drive started, literally hundreds of undesirables have emigrated from Booger Town, to settle in other boom camps in the great oil field, or to leave the section entirely.

Oil field trucks, a posse of heavily armed officers and citizens and a whole corps of Borger business men were used in one recent foray in which more than 100 women were forcibly seized, placed on the trucks and deported from the city.

Chase Women Away

More than 500 women alone have been unceremoniously removed from the city since the clean up started, it is estimated. The reform move also has worked inroads on the flourishing bootlegging business, while the gambling profession decidedly isn't what it used to be, the remaining professors of chance in the town admit sadly.

As the campaign proceeds, the wide open, blood red reputation of Booger Town is fading to a pale pink, hardly a ghost of its former lurid glory.

While it lasted there was plenty of excitement for the sensation seeker in Booger Town. All the sweepings of Cromwell, Ranger, Smackover, Powell half a score other former wild and woolly oil towns were there to help things along.

It was possible to buy any species of liquor, particularly the savage varieties. Corn whiskey, "choc" beer and "jake" (jamaica ginger) were the favorites in the hard refreshment line, most of the supply being made right in the town or in the adjacent country.

Although any form of gambling with cards is strictly forbidden in Texas, the Booger Town visitor never was troubled in his search for poker or monte excitement, provided of course he had the necessary cash to make himself interesting.

Cromwell Inn, Smackover Sal, "Dad" and "Ma" Murphy, the dance hall habitués, and red ladies of virtually every oil camp in America were among those present.

The town was—and is for that matter—policed by two gun men with unholy reputations for being quick on the trigger, hired by the townspeople company and instructed to "keep 'em oil-field-good."

Oil-field-good is about all that could be expected but quite some distance from good, by the way.

There was no jail, no city government in particular, no water, no chamber of commerce, no churches, no minister, no paving, "no nothing."

The townspeople situation alone was a problem calling almost for international diplomatic methods.

Borger is the oldest town. Hard against it on the south is Isom, an entirely separate town although the two business sections are merging, while equally close on the north are Dixon Creek, Whittenberg and Phillips, also separate towns.

Each town had—and has—its constables, "law force" and peace department—all—separate—and for a time this spring it appeared that a delightful war would break out any moment from the custom of the constabulary of one town of arresting the officers from the next town when they happened over the line—for carrying a gun, impersonating an officer or some similar crime.

The three interior towns, Borger, Dixon Creek and Whittenberg all were laid out in rapid succession by different townspeople promotion companies, so close together mainly because the site is the heart of the field and land could be obtained there.

PALE & PEAKED

Texas Lady Was Advised By Her Mother To Take Cardui, Which She Did With Good Results.

Hamilton, Texas.—Mrs. Gladys Poltevin, of this city, says: "At times I suffered awfully with pains across my back and through my sides. I would have to go to bed and stay two or three days at a time. It was very worrisome. I managed to keep going, but... I did not enjoy myself at all."

"One day my mother remarked on how bad I looked. She said: 'You look so pale and peaked, why don't you take a bottle of Cardui?' She had taken it herself a number of times, and it had always improved her health, so she thought I had better try it."

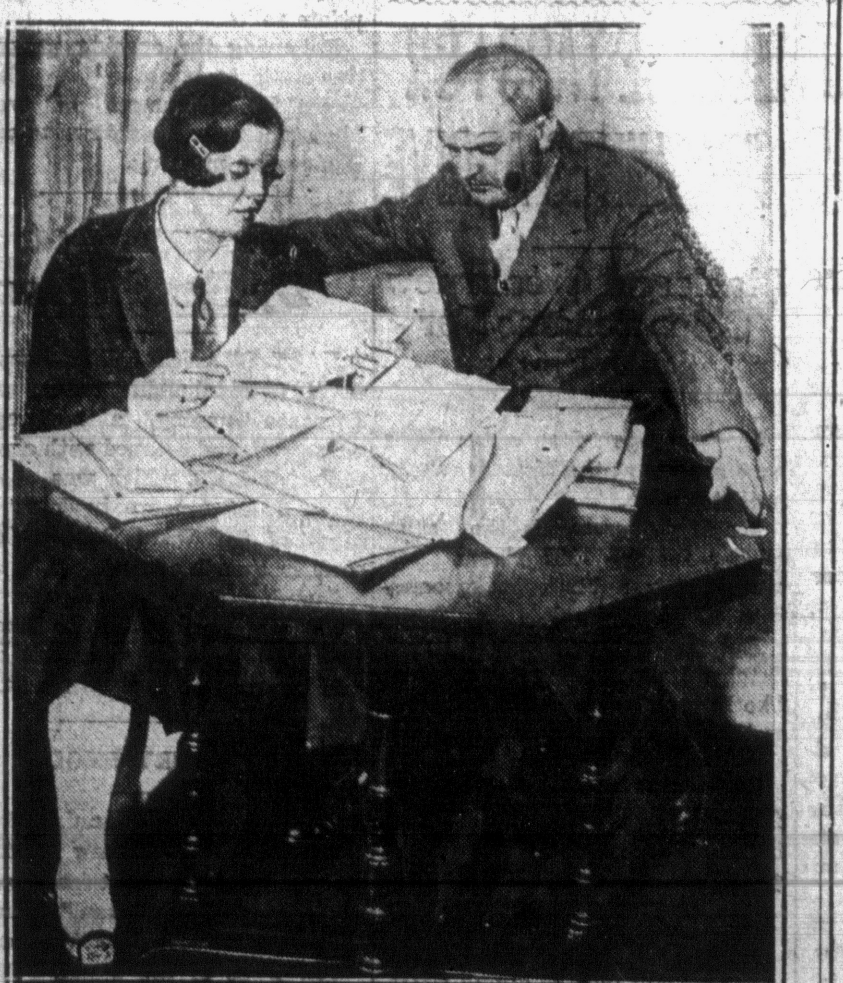

"I got the Cardui and began taking it, and from the first dose or two I could see a change for the better. The first thing I noticed was that my appetite was improved. I began to be hungry and I enjoyed my meals. I slept better at night. My rest was so much quieter that I got the benefit from it. I kept on with the Cardui and took it for several months. The pains in my back and sides grew less until they finally quit bothering me."

OLDEST "LIFER" IN FOR HALF CENTURY

Jesse Pomeroy Sent To Prison When 15 Years Old

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Jesse Harding Pomeroy, state prison's oldest "lifer," today, rounded out 50 years behind the bars, 41 of them a span of "living death" in solitary confinement.

Sixty-five years old and still hopeful of ultimate freedom, Pomeroy is believed to have set a record for prison endurance. The prison doors closed behind him in 1876 as a 15-year old boy convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to be hanged. His extreme youth won commutation to life imprisonment and solitary confinement.

In such state he grew through young manhood and middle age and nine years ago came into the comparative freedom of the prison building an old man. Annually his mother carried her fight for a pardon to the governor. Annually her request was refused and since her death Pomeroy has continued the unsuccessful fight alone.

Through a system of self-education, involving extensive reading, Pomeroy has won recognition as a student. He is a frequent contributor to "The Monitor," the prison paper, in the form of verse written under the name of "Grandpa."

Prison authorities have never allowed him to be interviewed, but a friend visiting him recently gained two facts—that he is opposed to capital punishment and that he saved money and contributed to the world war Liberty loan.

"After every capital punishment case, another serious crime is committed," said Pomeroy. "Society imprisoned Pomeroy because he killed, but accepted his money to make it possible for others to kill."

TODAY

12 Years Ago

From The Daily of September 7, 1914.

This date falling on Labor Day, there was From The Daily of

Don't blame highway departments for crooked roads, any speed demon can straighten them out.

Chicago Gunmen, by killing each other, at least are aiding the police to rid the city of the pests.

The trouble with the newest cotton pests is the worm returns.

May the last highway appropriations now be designated as the "sinking" funds?

There's one difference in city and state politics, we'll know who won that night.

Students are now leaving for school, parents will now learn just how expensive it is to teach sons and daughters the Charleston.

Another thing to be thankful for. The Twin-Cities are located in North Alabama and not in Illinois, center of the storm swept district.

While mopping your brow, remember that the thermometer has not been standing around the 100 mark so frequently this year as last.

An old fashioned man five years from now will be the fellow who remembers when the radio screeched at night.

Judging from the brass of some front door bell-ringers they have considerable more "Gaul" than Caesar had when he divided it into the now famous three portions.

A good spanking might help Louis Andrezzi, 15-year-old Crystal Falls, Mich., boy, who set fire to four buildings to "see the smoke" get a proper perspective.

People of North Alabama sincerely trust that Senator McKinley, who has been very ill, will be restored to health. He has been a warm friend of Muscle Shoals development.

Wonder if Senator Underwood, enjoying an ocean trip while his successors in politics battled over the spoils, could refrain from laughing occasionally to himself.

Permitting some people to stay behind the steering wheel of an automobile is as sensible as permitting a five-year-old boy to run wild with a loaded revolver.

Press dispatches from Montgomery state reports tabulated by the highway department show most of the main roads in good condition. Probably the reporters have failed to traverse the Muscle Shoals highway lately.

The noise of the primary election is lessened now, but there remains a strong undercurrent of opinion that the democratic executive committee could serve the state well by amending the primary regulations to provide for abolition of the second choice ballots and setting up machinery for a run-off.

PROSPERITY TALK ONLY "SMOKE SCREEN" TO HIDE REPUBLICAN PUBLIC CORRUPTION.

The "smoke screen" of prosperity which the republicans have used to hide their many errors of omission and commission in public affairs may fool part of the people, but it failed utterly to fool Cordell Hull, Tennessee representative, and prominent democrat.

The prosperity talk is merely a decoy, he declares, "to divert the attention of the voters from the wholesale corruption in Pennsylvania and Illinois, a tariff law that oppresses farmers and other vital issues." Thus Representative Hull breaks through the screen to bare the sinister finding to public gaze.

Mr. Hull continues:

"Why are all the tons of inspired literature exaggerating and lauding the Harding-Coolidge administrations and their 'achievements' beyond the wildest flights of imagination to be scrapped and abandoned, while 'the party of great moral ideas' falls back to the last refuge of those who seek a favorable verdict on an 'issue' long recognized by intelligent persons to be a fake and a fraud?" Mr. Hull asks.

"This sinister and unpatriotic 'prosperity' now basely assumes that the voters will consult their stomachs alone and ignore any purpose or duty to safeguard the morals, spiritual and humane side and also the high ideals which lie at the base of our free institutions.

"What is to become of the boasted Republican 'achievements' in behalf of agriculture, in the practice of morals and honesty and equality, and in the promotion of better understanding and friendship among nations? Aye, it is precisely this shameful and sordid record that they vainly seek to dodge and cover up. I wonder what the 30,000,000 persons connected with improvised agriculture think of the new 'prosperity' issue?

"Prosperity' is to be shouted from the house tops by paid Republican speakers as a device to blind and chloroform the people to the greatest menace to free government today, viz: the wholesale corruption of voters and purchase of elections in Pennsylvania and Illinois, for which the Republican party is responsible.

"President Coolidge has a wonderful opportunity for service by denouncing these disgraceful scandals which stain the history of the Republic, as Roosevelt denounced Lorimer, and demanding a restoration of decent standards of political ethics, public morals and official honesty. He cannot afford to hug Vane of Pennsylvania and Smith of Illinois to the bosom of his administration."

If the democratic party had a few more statesmen of the ability of Cordell Hull, its future would loom far brighter than it does now. If the democratic party had a few more leaders with the vision to see through the republican political schemes and with the ability to reduce those visions to words, so that the country too might catch them, the party of Thomas Jefferson would encounter fewer defeats and many more victories.

COLONEL GRAVES MAKES GOOD START FOR BETTER ROADS AND SCHOOLS.

Colonel Bibb Graves, since his nomination by the democrats of Alabama as their standard bearer in the gubernatorial election this fall, has done several things to dissipate any feeling which those who did not support him might have had that he would not measure up fully to the heavy demands upon him.

In Birmingham last week, Colonel Graves, in an interview, declared that he would seek a $25,000,000 bond issue for good roads. There has been a wide divergence of opinion regarding the size of a bond issue needed in Alabama to continue the highway construction program. Some were of the opinion no bond issue whatever was needed. Colonel Graves was one of the group who believed that $25,000,000 was needed and would be sufficient.

It is reassuring to know that he is ready to put his program into effect.

Chairman John Rogers has warned the people that the present available funds for highway building probably will not last longer than the next year. Much time is required to submit new bond issue amendments, get the amendment ratified, and the bonds sold. Therefore the present is a most opportune time to prepare the plans to make more money available when the necessity arises.

The present state highway commission undoubtedly will do all within its power to finish its plans before it goes out of office. That is a natural consequence. The conclusion of these plans will take a large sum of money and Colonel Graves, when he goes into office, probably will be confronted with an empty treasury, so far as highway money is concerned.

It is imperative that he set about now to raise the funds which will be needed next year, or the year following. It is understood from his Birmingham interview that he plans the complete reorganization of the state highway commission as it is constituted at present. That, of course, is his privilege and it was the general understanding that, if elected, he would call into existence a new set of office holders. The Daily feels that the present commissioners have done much in the manner of road building, but understands thoroughly that Colonel Graves could hardly do else, in view of the political aspects of the question, than to accept the resignations of the present members and appoint new ones in their places. It cannot find any fault with Colonel Graves for that desire.

The Daily is glad, however, that he is making his plans this early, for this newspaper, along with many other newspapers and other observers, is convinced that to permit of any delay or interruption in highway building at this time would be a public calamity for Alabama.

The Daily congratulates Colonel Graves on the promptness with which he is taking hold of the question and extends to him its very best wishes for success in his undertakings.

In the matter of schools Colonel Graves is to be commended for his desire to improve the situation, especially in the rural sections which have not been treated entirely fairly in the past.

So earnest have we Alabamians been in past years to build up our institutions of higher education in this state that we have not given to the rural schools the attention nor the consideration to which they are entitled.

The knowledge that many of the rural schools of this state can operate only three, or four, or five months in the year, because of a lack of funds, should bring a blush of shame to every Alabamian.

Fortunately it appears that the people have awakened to a realization of the plight of the schools and are determined to remedy the evil, so far as they are able.

The Daily, and a number of other newspapers, during the gubernatorial campaign made insistent demands that the candidates pledge themselves to a nine months school term in the rural sections. Most of the candidates did offer that pledge.

Following the election, The Daily urged its rural readers to see to it that these pledges were not forgotten and this newspaper receives with pleasure the pronouncement of Colonel Graves that the matter of nine months schools will be one of the first to be considered by him when he accepts office.

The Daily realizes that the goal which it had set is not one which may be reached in a day.

An Associated Press dispatch from Birmingham describes the situation in the following language:

"The question of nine months school term is already receiving the next governor's earnest consideration. He said he intends to give as much money as possible to education and that he intends to see that every white child gets at least a seven months school term during the first year of his administration and later, an arrangement for nine months term will be formulated."

The Daily believes this message from Colonel Graves will reassure all who have urged so strongly a better educational system for the rural sections. Again it wishes Colonel Graves much success in his undertaking.

Italian currency back to life and if possible to par. He "deflates," Italian currency, a painful financial process that involves redeeming and retiring hundreds of millions of paper lire a year.

It will mean business depression, 500,000 or 1,000,000 men out of work. That is interesting news, and proves again that nobody really understands finance.

A man working, producing wealth is like a hen laying eggs. If a hen expert had a plan to keep a million hens from laying, you wouldn't think much of him.

But Mussolini's plan may be the right plan. At least he isn't afraid to try it. And courage is the thing after a disaster.

Germany tells the allies she will pay off 300,000,000 extra gold marks next year, thus saving 200,000,000 gold marks on later payments. That is serious news. It indicates that German prosperity is real. It isn't always the winner of a war that comes out ahead.

With the aid of science any child may know its own father. A high court in Vienna decides that blood resemblance between father and child shown under the microscope is absolute proof and compels the man to support the mother of the child.

That is queer news.

Napoleon made it illegal for a woman to prove an illegitimate child's paternity. He needed soldiers and wanted to encourage childbirth by making it easy for the fathers.

VERY RESPECTABLE newspapers are agitated—because Young La Follette, with the consent and approval of voters, fills the senate seat and carries on the work of his father.

They talk about "mort main" in Wisconsin, wag their heavy heads, and worry about the "dead hand of the elder La-Follette," ruling through his son.

THEY don't say anything about "mort main" when Theodore Roosevelt, the second, runs for governor of New York and is beaten by Al. Smith from the sidewalks of New York.

They do not wag their heavy heads in grief because the heir to millions exercises the power of inherited money, which includes more than one vote in the senate.

La Follette isn't ruling by any dead hand. When he was alive he kicked plutocratic dishonesty. Plutocracy felt the kicks, and whined, through its paid, official whiners.

THOUGHT

OF THE WEEK

By J. A. West

(By J. A. WEST)

GLIMPSES OF SHADOW AND SUNSHINE

I saw a patient mother clad in the dark and sombre garments of mourning. Across her kind and patient countenance could clearly be traced the deep lines of motherly care and anxiety, and her hair was white with the snows of the years, all emblematical of the purity and usefulness of her long life.

Her step was slow and unsteady, and her form was bent with the weight of years.

She sat near the coffin which was banked with beautiful flowers in which reposed the form of one she loved; one who in infancy nestled upon her bosom, and in childhood's years prattled around her knee.

As she sat throughout the service, peering out through the gloom which enshrouded, I thought perhaps she was thinking of other years, and of the little hands that caressed her face, and arms that tenderly entwined around her neck—the tribute of childhood to one they love.

And then I thought that she be recounting the many tender ministrations which she was able to give, and the untold number of steps which she had taken for the object of her affection, and the many hours of watchful waiting about the sick couch, doing those things that only a mother can do in her motherly way.

Then I saw her as she sat near the open tomb and watched the beautiful coffin lowered out of sight, and listened to the meaningless words as they fell upon the coffin-lid, and then I thought what a satisfaction it was to know, and hug to the bosom in severe trials of this kind, that through all the varying scenes of life, in sunshine and shadow, in tempest and calm, trials and bereavements, that motherly love had threaded out to meet the demands made upon it.

I watched a group of happy children all bubbling over with youth's enthusiasm, playing beneath the large branches of a friendly tree, the hours which passed for them were youth's golden moments.

They were as bright as the sunshine, and the echo of their laughter made one forget the stern duties of life for the moment and become a child again.

How busy they were. Here and there they flitted as busy as bees, perfectly oblivious of the discord of the noise of traffic, perfectly intent upon the joy they were bringing from the golden moments, making history upon which their minds might feast when duties and responsibilities crowd in upon them.

Each was an actor in the drama of child life, and as the curtain went up, revealing the stage upon which all were playing their part so well, I thought of that sentence "unless you become as a little child etc."

There was no affection. Every movement was natural; their bearing was not for show, for each was intent solely upon the childish interest each had in the play hand.

They were trusting, never doubting. They revealed not in thought of the future and what it held store for them, their full time was taken up in enjoying the present and making the most of the beauties all about.

I thought mature life might be a great lesson from them, instead of constantly crossing bridges which are never reached, as climbing hills that we never encounter, how much better it would be to pattern our life along the child life, and enjoy the beautiful day by day that have been so lastly placed for our enjoyment and use.

REHEARSAL PARTY FOR POINTER-GARNER WEDDING PARTY

The last of the many beautiful pre-nuptial affairs that have been given during the past month for Miss Marjory Pointer and Mr. E. B. Garner, whose marriage will occur this evening at the First Methodist church, was the rehearsal party given by Mr. and Mrs. Foster H. Pointer, parents of the bride-to-be at the Pointer home on Ferry street. A profusion of Jackson vine formed a pretty background for the baskets and vases that were filled with flowers in the rainbow colors. The dining table was unusually pretty with its cover of real lace on which trails of vines were brought from the edges to the base of the three-tiered bride's cake that centered it. Candles in silver were placed at intervals on all sides.

Seventy-five guests were included in Mr. and Mrs. Pointer's hospitality and late in the evening they repaired to the spacious dining room where the bride-to-be cut the wedding cake which was served with ice cream, nuts and hints. Miss Eleanor Lanier received the slice in which was concealed the button, Ethridge Adams got the thimble, Clyde Hendrix, Sr., the ring, while Mrs. Matthews was lucky enough to receive the dime.

This and all of the other parties that have been given for this popular young couple will be long remembered with pleasure by those included in the guest lists.

BUSINESS MEETING OF MISS SIONARY SOCIETY

Despite the fact that Monday was a holiday there was a splendid attendance at the meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist church at four o'clock. It was the regular monthly business meeting.

The devotion was in charge of Circle No. 3 and they were led by Mrs. J. S. Robertson. The president took the chair following these, after which minutes were read and reports were heard from the four circles.

A special prayer session was held for the revival now in progress in the church which closed the meeting.

DINNER PARTY FOR MISS POINTER AND MR. GARNER

The Hotel Lyons private dining room was the scene of a delightful dinner party on Monday evening when Messrs. Joe Nathan and Allison Drisdale, of Sheffield, gave a dinner for Miss Marjory Pointer and Mr. E. B. Garner, whose marriage will take place Tuesday evening.

The Idler

By Dorothy Flack

THE idler! And why shouldn't she idle if she chooses? Grace, beauty, and that elusive thing called "feminine allure" are hers in abundance. To the world she gives the delight of her presence. The sunshine of her smile, the promise of her sweetness. Like the lilies of the field, "she toils not, neither does she spin." There's time enough for carrying burdens in the years ahead. Youth is too precious to waste in mental tasks, and fortunate is she who can afford to be an Idler.

Watch Elimination!

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

RETENTION of bodily waste matter in the blood is referred to as a "toxic condition." This often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling, and sometimes toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly at such times is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. Many people have learned to assist their kidneys in ridding the blood of these toxic products by drinking plenty of pure water and the occasional use of a stimulant diuretic. Doan's Pills are a stimulant diuretic and act on the kidneys only. They have earned a national reputation. Ask your neighbor!

Merrimack Rides To Easy Win On Labor Day, Aided By Fisk's Work

Merrimack took a listless affair from the local All Stars Monday afternoon 6-3, local bats observing the holiday when hits were needed. Maples, Merrimack hurler was strong with the exception of the last four innings when the local scoring was done. Many scoring chances were whittled down by the excellent fielding of Fisk who was stationed out in right field to chase flies and boy he certainly did his little chasing to the dismay of the local crowd. After battling for a pair of scoreless innings Merrimack took a commanding lead that proved safe for the entire route. Allison, the local hurling choice got in hot water from the start in thumping Baker on the arm with one of his fast ones. McDonald flied to Pepper and things looked pretty fair. Watson doubled to left center, but Baker halted at third. With a pair on Stacks singled to right, Baker counting, Watson scored as Ellison fumbled. Stacks going to second. Stacks took third while Tipton struckout. Adcock clouted for three sacks into deep right and Stacks counted. Adcock came across as Pepper's relay was low to Mitwede and went to the fence. Cruise struck out to end the frame. Albany-DeCATUR tried hard in the last of the third when with two out Pepper and Overton singled, but Fisk camped under one of Mitwede's pokes for the third out. Merrimack counted again in the fourth after two were down. Baker got a walk and stole second. McDonald hit a long fly to left which Short dropped while Baker was scoring. McDonald pulling up at second. Watson singled and then went out trying to pilfer. Things sailed along until the sixth inning. Merrimack had gone out, one, two, three. Overton rolled out. Mitwede got life on an error at short. Warren singled, Mitwede going to third and Warren to second on the throw. Allison walked to fill the sacks. Howell struck out. McAnn delivered the stuff into deep center, halting at second after three counters had trickled across the pan. That ended the local counting but not the local chances. The locals had another chance in the seventh. Pepper flied to right, Overton walked. Mitwede forced Overton and then took second. Warren hit solidly toward right for a bingle, but Mitwede was tossed out at the plate when Fisk chucked accurately to Tipton. A double play killed local chances in the eighth. In the ninth Merrimack got the last marker for good measure. Maples singled and went to second as Howell fumbled the ball. Baker fouled to McAnn. McDonald singled to bring Maples around, McDonald going to second on the throw in. Watson and Stacks grounded out. The locals made a desperate effort in the last half of the ninth when Short began things by flying to left. Burleson was safe on an error. Pepper went safe on an error while Burleson went to second. Overton caught one on the move into right labeled for at least three sacks, but this man Fisk going at top speed took it with his gloved hand and the inhabitants of the hassoos made tremendous efforts to get back to their bags. Mitwede ended things by poling out another to Mr. Fisk and the game came to an end. Watson, McDonald, Tipton, and

CHANCE IS SEEN FOR GAME HERE

Birmingham-Southern May Meet Eleven On Local Field

Chance that Birmingham-Southern's football eleven may play University of Chattanooga here this year or next was seen today, following the announcement of Dick Fennell, local boy, and prominent student at Birmingham-Southern, that he intends to open negotiations looking to this eventuality.

Young Fennell, being proud of Birmingham-Southern, is anxious for the football fans of (North Alabama see the team in action, believing that such a contest would go far toward centering the attention of the Tennessee Valley on the Birmingham Methodist school.

Mr. Fennell believed also that a game here, which would be well attended by Birmingham-Southern students, would result in quickened interest on the affairs of the school by the members of the denomination in this territory.

"I hardly believe that anything can be done this year," Mr. Fennell declared. "I have high hopes, however, that Albany-DeCATUR may be given a place on the Birmingham-Southern schedule next year."

Adcock were the hitting forces for the visiting folks, Adcock and Watson getting three pokes each, while Tipton and McDonald got a pair each. Merrimack grabbed a total of 12 blows off Allison.

For the locals Warren and Overton were the only lads who were able to gather more than one blow. Warren had a trio of bingles for his afternoon average while Overton banged out a pair. McAnn, Howell and Pepper did the rest of the bingling.

Score by innings: R. E. E. Merrimack 004 100 001-6 12 4 A-D. 000 003 000-3 8 2 Umpires: McCauley and Rankin.

Moulton News

(By Prof. Earl M. Hodson)

MOULTON, Ala., Sept. 7.—(Special).—According to the school census report just filed with the State Department of Education at Montgomery for Lawrence county there was a gain in enumeration of whites between the ages of 7 and 21, of 11 and a loss in the county of 100 over that of the last census, 1924. The census of 1924 also showed a loss over that of two years prior. School authorities are at a loss as to just how to account for the differences other than that here and there, Negroes have gone north and a few whites to the railroad shops at Albany-DeCATUR or public works about Muscle Shoals. There was, however, small gain in the total number of children six years of age, the census for the present year showing 627 as compared with two years ago; this is a gain of 59, the whites showing 35 more and the negroes 24. The figures also show that if the white boys of this particular enumeration should marry the girls of this enumeration only, 46 of them would have no wives, since there are that many more of them than of the girls. The total number of whites in school age not including those those of six years, is 6122, and of Negroes, 2143, a grand total of 8265. The report also shows that 840 of the whites listed cannot read and write, a percentage of 13.7 and that the Negroes more than 50 per cent is given as illiterate. With terms of less than five months in length, about 150 white teachers, many untrained and inexperienced, and 25 or 30 negro teachers to give instruction to this army of school children, it appears that many a hard educational blow must be dealt in Lawrence county before ignorance is routed.

He would go first, so that, if she should slip, there would be no danger of her falling. He must not look down, lest she be dizzy, and she must have no fear. They would make their way down the wall, not to the water, out to the nearest point where the prison walls touched land. "Just a little way to go, my darling," he told her. "You must not fear."

"I shall never fear while you are with me, Juan," she answered, and it seemed to Juan that her words put new strength into his body.

He crawled through the window, found the jutting stones which had given him a foothold a short time before, and then helped her through.

Then, slowly, they began to make their way down the wall, and he held her close to him.

"Pedrito! To Juan the recognition of that voice was as amazing a thing as if the stars had stopped in their course to aid him."

"Pedrito!" he cried, stumbling forward, one arm around Adriana. "Pedrito, your horse."

"Master!" Pedrito cried, turning. Before he could speak again Juan had mounted the horse and lifted Adriana to the saddle in front of him.

"Your sword," he cried, snatching it from Pedrito's hand. "Add your prayers for our safety," he added, over his shoulder, as the horse whirled and bounded away. A bare chance of escape, if he could make the wooded slopes outside the city in time.

Joe Stephenson, well known and popular local boy died last Friday night after a lingering illness extending over a period of several months, funeral services being conducted from Bethel church, where the body was laid to rest in the cemetery near where he spent his boyhood life.

Every member of the family did everything possible for the comfort of the patient, in the effort to nurse him back to health. Several weeks since he was carried to Asheville, N. C., hoping and thinking that the change would do good. It proved unavailing, and he was brought back home. He survived only a few days after returning.

Rev. R. W. Anderson, Rev. J. B. Rice senior and junior pastors of the First Methodist church, assisted by Rev. Charles Cobb, lay minister in the Baptist denomination, conducted the services which took place at 4:00 p. m. Saturday afternoon.

Deceased is survived by his mother, two sisters and three brothers; Messrs. Arthur, George and Jake, all of whom reside here.

ANOTHER LOG BUNGALOW

R. P. Bareltt has just completed a handsome log bungalow, on an elevated plot overlooking Lake Ashworth. The building which is logs throughout, built on the old style-chinked and daubed, with a large rock chimney containing a massive fireplace which will accommodate fire wood four feet in length, guarantees a quality of warmth which has never been improved upon.

The building is two story construction, a large airy sleeping apartment being upstairs.

This is the second house of this character Mr. Bareltt has built, the first one being near Ausley Bend on Flint Creek, which he sold recently.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Gulley spent the week end with relatives at Chattanooga, Tenn., motoring through last Friday.

Another car load of hewn cedar logs was loaded this week for export going for pencil timber. This is the second car to leave here during the past month. L. G. Gulley is shipper. The logs are destined for Germany, and go via Mobile.

Juan had mounted the horse and lifted Adriana to the saddle.

linging to its rough sides, reaching down with one foot, waiting for an instant, finding room for both feet together, then reaching down again.

And often, as Juan tumbled for a foothold, he feared that there would be none. He would stop and look down, sometimes to plot their course, and fear whispered to him that if Adriana should fall he could not stop her, would not hold her, and that they would both be plunged to their deaths.

"Better that way than as the Borgia would have had it," he told himself.

It seemed an eternity, that agonizingly slow progress. There was time for many thoughts to pass through Juan's mind. By now his disappearance must have been discovered. If Lucretia hurried back to Adriana's cell she must catch the girl's vanishing also, must discover Nerl, who lay stunned in a corner. What then?

The moon went under a cloud. Juan felt that he was climbing down into a bottomless pit, wondering if there would ever be an end of this journey. He spoke to Adriana, trying to make his voice steady and fearless.

"You are brave, beloved, to follow my lead so fearlessly," he told her.

"Your valor in saving me was so great that I can only imitate you," she answered.

At last, suddenly—solid ground beneath Juan's feet. He could hardly believe it. Another instant, and he had lifted Adriana down, and taken her in his arms.

The moon came out again, clear, bright, and daylight.

Above them there was a shout. They looked up.

There, in the window through which they had come, Nerl leaned forth and stared down at them.

It seemed to Juan that his limbs lost all their strength, that his heart turned suddenly to a great hammer held in the hands of a giant, beating against his breast with strokes that made him tremble.

Above, in the cell where Adriana had been imprisoned, Lucretia cried out angrily to Nerl.

"You see them?" she demanded. "How far have they gone? Where are they? Fools—you, and this keeper here, and all the others—fools, to let one man and one girl outrun you and escape! You shall suffer for this, all of you!"

MANY CLASSES
VISIT GOVERNOR

Mother Says That Her
Son Will Not Sin
Against Law

MONTGOMERY, Ala. Sept. 7.—(AP)—In course of a day from the time the Governor's reception room is opened until the business hours are over, many are there that enter therein. The rich, the poor the high and low all have business in the office of the State's chief executive.

It is interesting to sit and watch those that come in and go out. "This is your son's permanent parole," said a clerk in the Governor's office a few days ago, as the document was handed to an old lady bent with old age, "if he violates this parole they will send him back to the prison, he continued. "Oh, he won't do that, honey, said the mother, as she slowly but happily walked out of the office with the proud possession in her hand. "I want to see 'Plain Bill' Brandon," as the chief executive is sometimes called, said a stalwart middle aged man as he walked through the hall of the state capitol some days ago. "Keep straight down the hall and you will come to the governor's office just on the left, said one of the watchmen.

Usually the office is filled with young and old, both men and women waiting their turn to see the Governor. Some have important business while others drop by to pay their respects to the state's first citizen.

Scholarship Is Now Provided

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Dean Lee Bidgood, of the University of Alabama, has announced a new scholarship in the school of commerce and business administration. The new scholarship is provided by the American Arbitration association and has been awarded to John R. Thomas, a senior in the school of commerce. The scholarship provides $60 a month for nine months of work in the study of arbitration methods and practices. The American Arbitration in matters of business as distinguished from costly and lengthy process of law. It is said that a law permitting arbitration in matters has been on the statute books of Alabama for some years, though, it was said, there was little record in Tuscaloosa of any use having been made of the process in settling difficulties in business matters.

As a holder of the research scholarship, Thomas will make a study and compile the facts of arbitration of business matters in the south.

Judge Smith Was Prominent Man

WETUMPKA, Ala., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Judge Lamar Cantalou Smith, who was killed by an assassin Monday night by a load of buckshot while lying on a bed reading a newspaper in his home here, was a native of this city where he was born 55 years ago. He had lived here practically all his life except from 1872-1873 when he resided in St. Louis.

He is survived by his widow; one daughter, Mrs. Clyde Reese Bachelor, both of Wetumpka, and two brothers, George Smith, Luverne, and Edward Smith, of Rome, Ga. He has served as probate judge of Elmore county and in 1907 was a member of the House from this county. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, an Odd Fellow and a red man.

Educators To Have Building

MONTGOMERY, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The state of Alabama has purchased for state use the two story building on the northeast corner of Dexter avenue and Decatur street, and will immediately let a contract for fitting up for the use of the state educational department. It is said that in order to make it appropriate for this purpose it will cost around $6,500.

The removal of the educational department from the capitol building will give more room to those departments that will remain there. Just what particular department will occupy the old state educational quarters is not yet known.

ST. LOUIS.—When the general election rolls around in Missouri next November, a real party-to-party fight is in prospect.

The result of the senatorial returns will show whether the Democratic party has regained its one-time supremacy in Missouri and whether another Democratic senator will sit alongside of "Jim" Reed in the next congress.

Issues will not be many as both candidates—Congressman Harry B. Hawes and Senator George H. Williams, both of St. Louis—are agreed on practically all questions of interest to the voters.

On the world court both are on record as being opposed to the United States becoming a member. Each will make a bid for the farmer vote and on the question of farm relief, each will have a party platform to back up their pledges.

Platform Alike

Both Hawes and Williams voted for the McNary-Wughen bill, which went down to defeat at the last session. The leaders of both parties will meet in Jefferson City September 14 to draft their platforms and the farm plank is to have considerable attention.

No material difference will separate the planks of the two parties. The Democrats will seek a tariff reduction upon the commodities which farmers must purchase and otherwise work for legislation that will bring some relief to the soil illers, according to advance information.

The Republicans will ask that the protection principles be applied for the farmers' benefit in the same measure that it has been accorded to the manufacturing industry.

Both Hawes and Williams have the endorsement of the Missouri Farmer, William Hirth, head of the association, placed his O. K. on the record of each candidate in congress insofar as it concerned agricultural legislation.

No Major Issues

As far as major issues go, this will be all that will worry the two parties or more particularly, the two senatorial candidates. There will be references to Missouri and Mississippi river improvements and good roads, but the platforms here also will stand up alongside each other like indistinguishable twins.

The prohibition issue will not be heard of in the senatorial race as this has been eliminated and will be taken care of at the polls on the referendum vote on repeal of the existing enforcement statutes in Missouri.

Hawes and Williams, neither "dripping wet," were opposed by the Anti-Saloon League of Missouri in the primary election on August 3, Hawes because he said he would ask a slight modification of the Volstead act and Williams because he said he would if the voters approved the repeal movement.

All dry candidates were eliminated in the primary, when the prohibition question was the dominant issue, but the arid forces have been silent since that time and neither candidates has brought the matter into the open in recent days.

Klan Issue Out

No reference has been made nor none is expected of the Ku Klux Klan as upon the record books it already has been written that Hawes and Williams are anti-It. It is not regarded as likely, in view of this fact, that the organization itself will inject its power into the

BLAME NARCOTIC
RING-FOR DEATHS

Mother Kills Woman
And Then Takes
Her Own Life

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Fear of a narcotic ring that her daughter had become entangled with is believed by police today to have caused Mrs. Mary Lichteiter, 65, to shoot her 38-year-old daughter, Mrs. Hazel McMahan, while she was sleeping, and then contest one way or the other.

Sizing up the two prospective senators on the merits of their beliefs, one would have to flip a coin to decide which one would be his choice unless, (and this always is a possibility) the state platform conventions in their September gatherings, find something with which the other may find grievous fault.

All of which brings us back to the point first made at the beginning of the article that issues will be flung aside and that Democrats and Republicans will meet in the political ring at even weight and may the best party win.

It was learned today that Mrs. McMahan had the keys to a safety box where she is said to have told attorneys $112,000 and a quantity of narcotics were stored. She was to have met Sam Swartz, attorney, yesterday and turned the key to the box over to him.

When she failed to appear, he went to her home where he found the young woman dead in bed and the elder woman huddled in a chair with her arm slashed and a bullet through her heart.

Mrs. McMahan is said to have become entangled in the "ring" when she became bookkeeper for W. R. Phillips, contractor, who recently vanished from Louisville after he was thrown into bankruptcy. Police are seeking Phillips in the hope he may aid them clear the mystery.

Detectives are convinced that Mrs. McMahan was killed while she was asleep. Coroner Carter expressed the belief that Mrs. Lichteiter worried over her daughter's connection with the ring, shot and killed her and then cut her wrist with a razor. Finding this a slow death, the coroner said, the woman then fired a bullet into her heart. He said he would not hold an inquest unless something further is developed.

Charles McMahan, husband of Mrs. Hazel McMahan, said today: "They didn't kill themselves. Somebody killed them."
